TEST EVAPORATION ON SALTON BASIN

Need Information to Name
Size of Proposed Reservoirs.

Preliminary arrangements have just been completed by the Geological Survey, the Weather Bureau, and the Reclamation Service for the most extensive study of evaporation ever conducted by scientists in America. The immediate object is to ascertain how rapidly the water evaporates from the Salton basin, converted into an inland sea by the Colorado river bursting through its banks and flooding thousands of acres to a depth of eighty feet.

The river has been turned back into its old course, and the water in the basin is left to evaporate. Prof. Frank Bigelow, of the Weather Bureau, and G. K. Gilbert, of the Geological Survey, are now in conference at Inuma, Arizona, in regard to the best methods of measuring the rate of evaporation, and of taking observations as to its effect on the climate. It is desired to get at the exact rate of evaporation of water in the West. Engineers, in computing the size of proposed reservoirs for irrigation purposes, have been handicapped. It is said, by the lack of definite information along this line. That the evaporation is enormous, is shown by the estimation that enough water will evaporate from the new Roosevelt reservoir in Arizona, in one year, to irrigate 50,000 acres.

FALLS FROM WINDOW, F. RUPPRECHT DEAD

Ferdinand Rupprecht, one of the oldest bakers in the city, fell from a second-story window at his home, 208 Fourteenth street northeast, early yesterday morning, and was killed instantly. Mr. Rupprecht arose about 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. He awakened his wife in dressing, but owing to the early hour she went to sleep again.

His body was found in the back yard about 7 o'clock. He was fully dressed, except for his shoes. It is supposed that Mr. Rupprecht was sitting on the window sill, when he lost his balance and fell to the ground below. His skull was fractured by the fall.

Mr. Rupprecht was sixty-nine years old, and had been in the bakery business in Washington for fifty years. He was born in Germany, but came to this country in his early youth. He retired from active business about three years ago.

SUBMARINE SINKS 200 FEET DEEP

BOSTON, May 20.—If the submarine boat Octopus passes safely through a submergence at 200 feet this week, it will not be the first to break the record of 130 feet, now held by a French submarine. To make sure that such a depth is safe for the deep-sea cruisers, the Cuttlefish, one of several submarines being constructed at the Fore River yard, it became known today, was taken out and lowered 200 feet beneath the surface.

There were no men in the shell, but what is regarded as a perfect test of the structural strength and machinery of the vessel was satisfactorily made. At a depth of 200 feet, the pressure on the boat was about 90 pounds to the square inch, while on the whole boat there was a combined pressure of 15,000 tons.

So that the Octopus might have the honor of first sinking to that depth, an effort was made to keep the preliminary test a secret. The honor, however, will go to the Octopus' crew unimpaired.
